

Fulbright Scholar Program

Prof. Miriam O'Kane Mara from Arizona State University is visiting as a Fulbright scholar at the department of Literature, where she will share her vast knowledge and research interests in literary theory, transnational discourses, comparative literature and postcolonial space with both the faculty and students. Prof. Mara earned her Ph.D in English from University of New Mexico, M.A in English from University of North Carolina. In addition to holding various academic and administrative positions, Prof. Mara has received several academic honours and awards, research and fellowship grants in recognition and support of her scholarship including Tapestry of Diverse Talents, Arts, Humanities, and Social Sciences Outstanding Research Award Honorable Mention, Fulbright Scholar Program. Prof. Mara is also well versed with the conference circuit, having presented more than thirty papers in conferences around the world, published several refereed journal articles and book chapters. During her stay Prof. Mara will teach postgraduate students, provide supervision and mentorship as well as conduct research.