Higher Education in Emergencies and Crises

NAIROBI, SEPTEMBER 10-21, 2018

Call for Registration

Kenyatta University in partnership with United Nations Office Nairobi host the Geneva Summer School. Theme: Higher Education in Emergencies and Crises
September, 10-21, 2018 at Kenyatta University and UNON, Nairobi

Today the average conflict lasts 10 years, and families remain in internally displaced person (IDP) camps for an average of 17 years. While humanitarian programming often focuses on life-saving activities, the failure to prioritize education in general – and higher education in particular – leaves entire generations uneducated, developmentally disadvantaged, and unprepared to contribute to their society's recovery.

The HEiE course will explore post-secondary education in emergency and protracted settings through the following 5 modules:

- Module 1: International Law & Policies
- Module 2: Foundations of Digital Learning
- Module 3: Programme Design & Implementation
- Module 4: Research in HEiE and Monitoring & Evaluation
- Module 5: Capstone Projects

Participants will be provided with a conceptual framework for Higher Education in Emergencies (HEiE). The course will include high-level seminars with faculty and field experts, which participants will apply to real-world case studies (Capstone Projects) through collaborative learning, tutoring sessions and project presentations. They will also gain an understanding of how multiple pedagogical resources can be leveraged efficiently and effectively to produce sustainable outcomes in fragile contexts.

This course is designed for:

- Humanitarian practitioners
- Graduate students and faculty in international relations, international education, and educational technologies
- Representatives of donor organizations whose mission and mandate includes education and higher education
- Representatives of Education Ministries

Tuition Fees: 2700 CHF (Limited Scholarships Available)

Deadline for Registration: June 30, 2018
